Can you help the lord organise his day by sticking his timetable in order on this sheet?

A large rectangular area with an orange background, containing a sequence of ten empty white rectangular boxes. The boxes are arranged in two columns of five. Arrows point from the right side of each box in the left column to the top-left corner of the corresponding box in the right column, indicating a sequence of tasks to be ordered.

A day in the life of a lady.

I get up and get dressed at dawn. Then I say my morning prayers at church. For breakfast I eat bread and meat or fish with my husband the lord. After breakfast I meet with other noble ladies to share our news. I then have to do my duty as lady of the house and teach the young noble girls how to read and write. I meet my husband to say our prayers and then we have dinner.

After lunch I have leisure time, where I normally practise sewing or dancing. Sometimes I use this time to check the cook is working hard.

Before and after supper I say evening prayers with my husband. Our suppers can be very long if we have guests. After supper we go to bed.

A day in the life of a cook.

I get up before dawn and begin preparing the lord and lady's breakfast. Shortly after sunrise I say my morning prayers and I eat breakfast. Then I clean and tidy before spending the next few hours in the kitchen preparing dinner. After prayers, dinner is served in the great hall. Everyone in the castle eats it so I have to make sure I cook enough food.

After dinner I have to clean and tidy the great hall and the kitchen. Then I start preparing the supper. This takes me a long time, especially if I am preparing a banquet. Banquets often had six or seven courses!

Before supper I say my prayers, then I eat. After supper I have to clean and tidy the great hall and the kitchens again. When I have said the final prayers of the day I go to bed. I am normally awake longer than anyone else in the castle.
